Cora Drew's life crumbles when she loses her husband, Abner, after they are involved in a terrible accident.

Their union was sealed with the imminent arrival of their first child and the loss of her unborn baby and husband in the accident sends Cora into a deep depression, one where she sees little hope for the future.

Only a few months earlier, she had been Abner's happy new bride.

While theirs may have been an arranged marriage, Abner was kind and considerate, and she was content to be by his side for the rest of her days.

When her cousin, Lina, organizes for her to meet Seth McIntire she is persuaded to contemplate the handsome storekeeper as a potential beau.

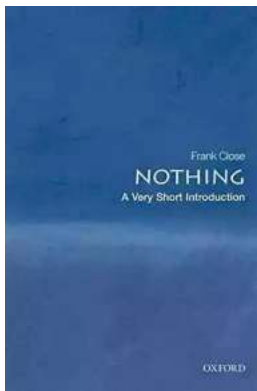

Cora longs for the thing's money can't buy - a home and a family. She thought she had found them with Abner.

Can Cora learn that the past is past and what really matters now is what the future might hold for her and Seth, by putting everything behind her and moving on to find the happiness she thought she had lost forever?

Or will the constant fear that history will repeat itself prevent her from ever finding true peace, love, and contentment in her life?
