Unveiling the Mysterious Connection

The relationship between Vita Sackville-West and Virginia Woolf is a subject that has fascinated readers and literary enthusiasts for generations. Vita, a brilliant poet and novelist, was married to diplomat Harold Nicolson but had passionate affairs with both men and women throughout her life. Virginia Woolf, a pioneering feminist writer, struggled with her mental health but produced remarkable literary works.

Their paths crossed in the Bloomsbury Group, a gathering of influential intellectuals and artists in early 20th-century London. The intense intellectual and emotional connections Vita and Virginia shared developed into a partnership that was both intellectual and romantic in nature. Their love letters reflect the depth of their connection as they navigated the complexities of love, writing, and life.

Delve into a legendary literary love affair

'I am reduced to a thing that wants Virginia. I composed a beautiful letter to you in the sleepless nightmare hours of the night, and it has all gone. I just miss you...'

At a dinner party in 1922, Virginia Woolf met the renowned author, aristocrat - and sapphist - Vita Sackville-West. Virginia wrote in her diary that she didn't think much of Vita's conversation, but she did think very highly of her legs. It was to be the start of almost twenty years of flirtation, friendship, and literary collaboration. Their correspondence ended only with Virginia's death in 1941.

Intimate and playful, these selected letters and diary entries allow us to hear these women's constantly changing feelings for each other in their own words. Eavesdrop on the affair that inspired Virginia to write her most fantastical novel, Orlando, and discover a relationship that - even a hundred years later - feels radical and relatable.
