With each bite, he discovers the unique flavors that represent the culture and history of the places he visits. The richly spiced apple tart in Provence excites his palate with the intense aroma of cinnamon and nutmeg. In the alleys of Morocco, the exotic combination of pistachios and rosewater in a pistachio tart tantalizes his taste buds with its floral and nutty fusion.

Duncan firmly believes that when exploring a new destination, indulging in its signature tart is like uncovering a small piece of the country's soul. These delightful tarts become his passport to understanding the local heritage and connecting with the people around him.

Charming Touts: Guides to Hidden Gems

While most tourists stick to popular attractions, Duncan's interactions with charming touts have opened the doors to hidden gems that remain unknown to many. These locals have an unparalleled knowledge of their surroundings and are willing to share their secrets with those who appreciate the true beauty of a place.

Whether exploring the vibrant streets of Bangkok or wandering through the intricate alleyways of Venice, Duncan seeks out the assistance of these touts. They lead him through hidden passages, secret gardens, and local markets that teem with life, offering a genuine taste of the destination's soul.

It is through these encounters that Duncan gains a deeper understanding of the culture, traditions, and values of the places he visits. He believes that a tout is not just a guide but also a bridge to connecting with the heart of a city.

Magnificent Temples: Discovering Spiritual Marvels

As Duncan embarks on his quest for exquisite delights, he is drawn to the allure of magnificent temples that stand as testaments to human craftsmanship and devotion. These awe-inspiring architectural marvels serve as a gateway to exploring the sublime spiritual realm present in each destination.

From the grandeur of Angkor Wat in Cambodia to the serenity of the Golden Temple in Amritsar, Duncan immerses himself in the tranquility and mysticism that these temples offer. The scent of incense, the rhythmic chants, and the intricate artwork transport him to a higher plane of existence, where he finds solace and enlightenment.

Duncan understands that each temple carries a unique energy and significance, stemming from the centuries of devotion that have taken place within their walls. He views these sacred sites as a window into the heart and soul of the communities that built them, reflecting their spiritual beliefs and cultural identity.

Tarts, touts, and temples - Duncan Stearn's journey is an enchanting exploration of some of life's most exquisite delights. Through his experiences with the delectable tarts, knowledgeable touts, and majestic temples, Duncan discovers the beauty that lies beyond the surface of a destination.

His adventures teach us the importance of embracing the local flavors, seeking guidance from those who know the hidden gems, and attuning ourselves to the profound spiritual marvels that exist in every corner of the world.

So, if you're a fellow wanderlust enthusiast yearning for a journey that fills your senses and touches your soul, follow in Duncan Stearn's footsteps and prepare to be swept away by the wonders that await you.

A modern travelogue around Southeast Asia. Thailand based Australian journalist Duncan Stearn gives his unique views of Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Philippines, Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam. Duncan seems to find those parts that other travel writers miss.

Discover how Bangkok tuk-tuk drivers make their living. Glimpse the seedier side of Singapore life. Wander the streets of Vientiane and Saigon, and so much more. Or as the author says "...I've never been anywhere in Southeast Asia since then I didn't like. While some places haven't filled me with a great desire to come back quickly, none have been put on the 'don't go there again' list."

The author first arrived in the region in 1993 and now lives in Pattaya, Thailand where he writes books and is a working journalist.
